FRANKLIN, TN – Mercy Community Healthcare (Mercy) has announced that David (Dave) Carter will join the organization as Chief Executive Officer on June 1. David succeeds his friend Cindy Siler following a decade of leadership and service.

For the past ten years, David has served as Chief Revenue and Marketing Officer at Twelvestone Health Partners, a local healthcare company based in Murfreesboro. During his tenure, he helped lead the company through a period of rapid expansion that earned recognition on the Inc. 5000 list for six consecutive years from 2020 to 2025. He also played a key role in restructuring the company's revenue model around specialty infusion center services, supporting growth into five additional Southeastern states.

Earlier in his career, David held executive leadership positions in the telecommunications and broadband industry with Comcast and AT&T Broadband. He is also a veteran of the United States Army, where he attained the rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

David and his wife, Carly, have been married for 39 years and have a son, Clarke, who serves as a Senior FP&A Analyst with OneOncology. They live in Temple Links and are active members of Christ Community Church in Franklin.

"The vision for Mercy's future is to drive sustainable growth and cultivate new and existing partnerships, ensuring we deliver quality, affordable healthcare to elevate the entire community," said David Carter, CEO.

Mercy's Board of Directors established a search committee to oversee the hiring of Mercy's next CEO.

"After a comprehensive search, we are excited to welcome Dave as our new CEO," said Julia Stump, Board of Directors Chair. "He brings a proven track record of transformational leadership. The board is confident that Dave has the vision and compassion to lead our health center into the future.”
